William Wegman, "Postcard Paintings" at Sperone Westwater Gallery

William Wegman may be best known for his photographs featuring Weimaraners, but his skill as a painter is on full display in Nolita. The artist, an avid collector of vintage postcards, uses them as the focal point of inspiration at Sperone Westwater, vastly expanding on scenes ranging from San Francisco's Golden Gate Bridge to a salon-style lesson in art history. Wegman copies and expands on the imagery in each card to build an entrance into an entirely new world.
